NS elementaries host open house to 'unpack backpacks'

On the evening before the first day of school, families with children in North Scott's elementary schools are invited to attend an open house to help "unpack their child's backpacks." School officials are hoping that this will better serve families and will allow the first day of school to begin with less anxiety.

At Alan Shepard Elementary in Long Grove, open house will be from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Neil Armstrong in Park View, Virgil Grissom in Princeton, and John Glenn in Donahue will all be open from 5:30 to 7 p.m. The PTA at Glenn also will be hosting a hotdog roast for students and parents that evening. At Ed White in Eldridge, open house will be from 4 to 6 p.m.

GOT FALCONS?
NORTH SCOTT
LANCERS !!
Got Falcons!

Mrs. Wallace's kindergarten class at Ed White was the "Best Theme-Oriented" float, putting a falcon and a football player within a bird cage.

The Lancers definitely proved they "got falcons" during Homecoming 2004, and they also showed plenty of North Scott spirit as well. Winners at Thursday's parade included: Best of Show - 1. Music Boosters, 2. Athletic Boosters, 3. Mrs. Wallace's Kindergarten; Best Walking Entry - 1. NS Marching Band, 2. Tina's Dance Studio, 3. Long Grove Pack 203 Boy Scouts; Most Creative - 1. Athletic Boosters, 2. Central Office, 3. NS golf team; Best Theme-Oriented - 1. Mrs. Wallace's kindergarten, 2. Lancer Productions, 3. NS Lunch Ladies; Most School Spirit - 1. Neil Armstrong, 2. Virgil Grissom, 3. NS Cheerleaders; Best Class Float - 1. Sophomores, 2. Juniors, 3. Seniors. The week's events concluded with the high school dance on Saturday night. For details on the game, see pages 2B.

Grandparents visit Ed White

Aiding local fire victims

Ed White Student Council president Derek Kupris and vice president Kayla Naber present a check for $360 to Jamie Lange (left) of the American Red Cross of the Quad Cities Area. Elementary students paid $1 each to wear a hat to school, with the funds going to assist the victims of recent local fires. The Eldridge elementary school also will be supporting the Red Cross by participating in the Heroes program. Student Council members will be selling "Be a Hero" bracelets for $1 apiece until early March.

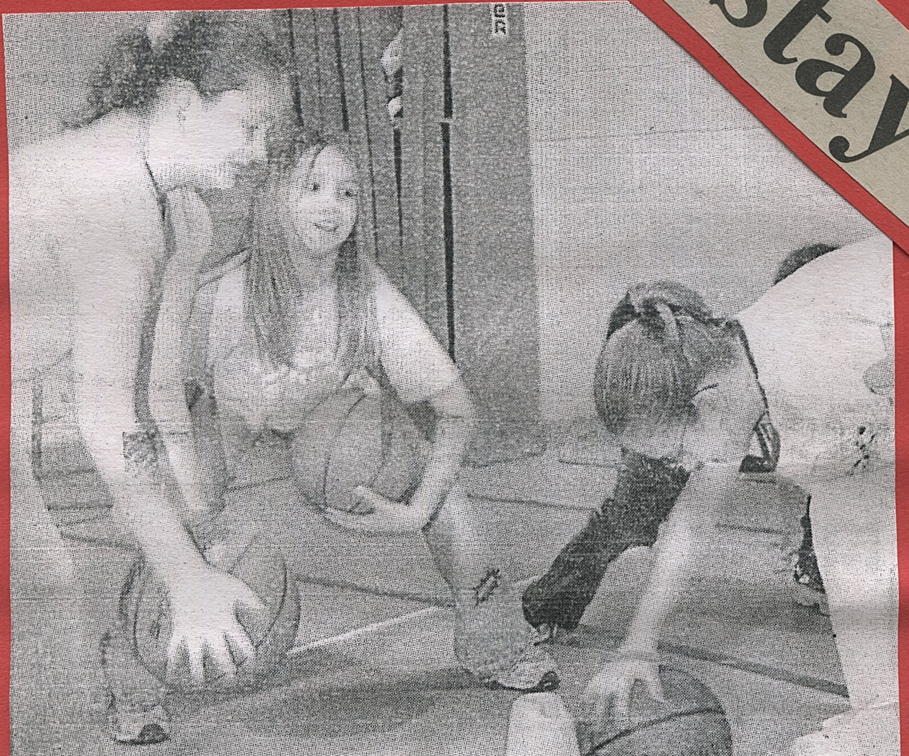
Helping hearts stay healthy

North Scott schools emphasized heart health during the month of February. Students not only learned how to have a healthy heart, but raised funds for the American Heart Association to help others as well. Activities included a Jump Rope for Hearts day and a Hoops for Hearts day.



Ed White students (l-r) Sabrina Ertz, Emily Hermiston and Allison Meier work or their ball-handling skills during the recent "Hoops for Heart" fund-raising event at the Eldridge elementary school.

Stephanie Baldwin Has Success at Invent Iowa

Stephanie Baldwin's invention, the "Wheel Saver", advanced from District Invent Iowa to the next level of competition which will take place at the Bettendorf Museum later this month.

According to Mr. Thiessen, Edward White's Invent Iowa Coach, Stephanie's invention has generated a lot of attention.

Twice Upon a Time....

FRACTURED
FAIRY TALES

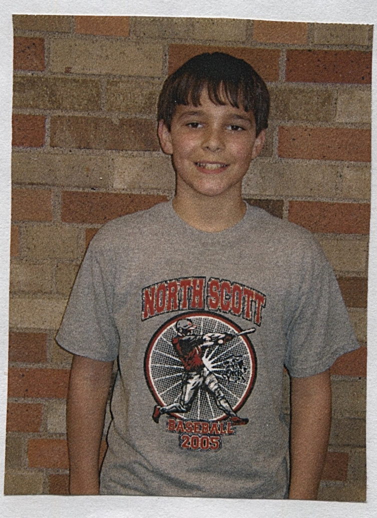
Alexa Hanson Wins Writing Contest

Our 4th grade-writing students entered a writing contest sponsored by the Old Creamery Theater group. It was called "Twice Upon a Time" and it asked the students to write a fractured fairy tale (which is a twist on a classic fairy tale). Alexa Hanson, along with all of our students, worked very hard to write their very own fractured fairy tales. Today, we got notice that Alexa's entry, titled "Cinpurrella" (which features a cat named Cinpurrella and is based on Cinderella), won 3rd place out of the 550 entries received. She won a $50 savings bond, as well. It is quite an honor, and we are so excited for her (AND proud of all of the other entrants, too, for their hard work)!



5th Grade Flag Essay Winners

Several 5th graders went the extra mile last week and entered an essay contest put on by the American Legion. They were given the option to enter a "What the Flag Means to Me" 75 – 150 word essay, which was then judged by members of the American Legion. Two of Ed White's fifth grade students, Ashton Temple and Eric Gansemer, were selected to move on to the district level with their writing. All the students who entered put forth extra effort in doing this project and saw the writing process through to publication. Great job on all the hard work!

Schmitt-Thiessen vows exchanged July 24

Erin Schmitt of Chillicothe, Ill., and Brent Thiessen of Davenport were united in marriage on July 24, at St. Edward Church in Chillicothe.

Parents of the bride are Tom and Colleen Schmitt of Chillicothe. The groom is the son of William and Marilee Thiessen of Davenport. His grandmothers are Barbara Thiessen and Marie Vierkant.

The Rev. Glenn Harris officiated the ceremony. Susan Mettille was the matron of honor. The bride's attendants were Jill Schmitt, Sarah Martin and Katie Schott. Hope Mettille was the flower girl.

Brian Thiessen was the best man. Groomsmen were Brad Thiessen, Shamus Budde and Scott Loftus. Ring bearers were Hunter Mettille and Dagan Martin. Vince and Seth Bales and Mallory and Mariah Mark served as ushers. A reception was held at St. Vincent de Paul Parish Hall in Peoria.

The bride graduated from St. Ambrose University and is employed by the Pleasant Valley School District. Her husband also graduated from St. Ambrose. He is employed by the North Scott School District.

Following a honeymoon trip to TyBee Island, Ga., the couple resides in Davenport.

Cute, colorful and environmentally friendly, these purses made from empty drink pouches are gaining in popularity here. Kayla Naber, 12, of Eldridge, sews the bags herself and has begun teaching others to make them, too. Photo by Tracy Dunn

Eldridge girl transforms trash into fashion accessories

By Tracy Dunn
Of The NSP

Twelve-year-old Kayla Naber is on the cutting edge of fashion. Literally.

The Ed White sixth-grader carries the latest in accessories — the Capri Sun® purse. She and her younger sister, Brooke, each received one of the trendy bags from their grandmother, who assured them they were all the rage Back East.

Kayla is the daughter of Glen and Jackie Naber of Eldridge. Along with a couple of her friends, she began taking sewing lessons about a year ago from local seamstress Katie Efaw.

Now, Kayla has started making the purses herself. Fashioned from colorful, empty drink pouches, the purses are cute and fun, while keeping trash out of the landfill.

She cuts the top edge off each pouch and washes it out thoroughly. She then pieces them together, stitches the seams, and adds a handle (also made from pouches) and ribbons and buttons for trim. She even glues on hook-and-loop squares to keep the purses closed.

It takes a dozen pouches to make one purse, and Kayla has assigned Brooke the chore of drinking most of the juice when she buys them.

"I only like one or two kinds," she says of Capri Sun, which comes in a variety of flavors, and therefore a variety of colored packages.

Not all her pouches come from home, however.

"I've gotten over 87 from people at school," says Kayla.

While shopping for purse trimmings at Hancock Fabrics in Davenport, a clerk asked Kayla what she was making. When she explained her project, the manager asked her to teach a class at the store. Her first class met over North Scott's spring break. The manager at Hancock called KWQC-TV to tell them about Kayla, and earlier this month, she appeared on "Paula Sands Live" to demonstrate how to make one of her purses.

So far, Kayla has made the bags for her friends as birthday gifts, and a few teachers have ordered them for their own daughters. It's tough to set a price on the purses, since sometimes Kayla has to buy the pouches and others she gets for free. She says it takes about one hour to complete a purse.

When not busy turning out the trendy little bags in her bedroom/sewing room, Kayla has plenty of other projects. She enjoys designing purses out of fabric, too. But her favorite sewing feat so far has been a quilt for her baby sister, Natalie.
